

Ambassador Times

Connecting Hearts.....Connecting Minds...

From the Principal

'Before we even realized, it's already December and this month is considered incomplete without the festivities associated with it. Christmas is a time of reflection, gratitude, togetherness and time to make up for those busy days / late working hours and everything else in between that might have kept us away from 'me time'

Dear Parents,

At this special time of the year, we want to celebrate the support, dedication, and involvement of each parent and staff. I extend my heartfelt gratitude to our students, our dedicated staff members, and our broader community, whose collective efforts have fostered an environment of positivity and growth. Your continuous encouragement and partnership in nurturing our students academically, spiritually, and emotionally is invaluable. The recent DSIB inspection report validates this collective dedication and efforts. The school stands at a strong 'Very Good' having moved up in another 6 areas to 'Outstanding'. Congratulations!

We have journeyed through a year with moments that tested our resolve and celebrated our triumphs. Such ebbs and flows are inherent in the tapestry of any school community or family. What distinguishes Ambassador community is how we navigate these highs and lows together. Our resilience lies in our ability to come together at these times, extending unwavering support to each other, consciously or unconsciously. This support manifests in various forms for different individuals, yet it is the unifying thread that binds us. I have witnessed this collective strength within our community time and again.

As we conclude 2023 – let's remind ourselves that in this fast paced world, we need to consistently be role-models. Our school has created that culture where we emphasize how important it is to take more time to check in with students and to help them continue their trajectory of social-emotional growth. Our teachers are also teaching children to take extra care to observe and share their own feelings. When students realize their feelings are valid and manageable, and perhaps even shared by others, it helps them build the skills and connections that are so important to their development and can help sustain well-being even during challenging times. While enjoying and relaxing this holiday season, please make a conscious effort to teach children what to do when they are upset, what to do when they are worried, how to deal with disappointments or when things do not happen as per their wish. When you equip them to deal with these situations, every other challenge gets tackled effortlessly. Ultimately, it's all there in the mind.

As we enjoy the winter break, it is my fervent wish that each one of you receive and return the seasonal bounty of blessings and good tidings that make these days truly special.

Happy 2024 to you and yours!

Warm regards
Dr. Sheela Menon
Principal

Escaping a deadly and scary cave

Janaki Raman is known for his intelligence and witty. He is also called as Pandit Ramakrishna. Pandit Ramakrishna was one of the courtiers in the Vijayanagara court of the king Krishnadevaraya. Krishnadevaraya was the third monarch of the Tuluva Dynasty. Pandit Ramkrishna was one of the Ashtadiggajas and was the best friend of Krishnadevaraya.

One day Krishnadevaraya's small brother was playing with a ball. Pandit Ramakrishna was going to the meeting area to meet the king. On the way he met Krishnadevaraya's small brother. He asked Pandit Ramakrishna on an item that he could aim. Pandit Ramakrishna noticed that the small child was playing next to a door. Pandit Ramakrishna found a hole on top of the door that was little bit high for Krishnadevaraya's small brother to aim. Pandit Ramakrishna told the child about the hole he found and told "nothing is impossible in this world you can make the impossible to possible." If you aim properly, the ball will go inside the hole. He listened to Pandit Ramakrishna and aimed. Pandit Ramakrishna left and went to the meeting area.

Krishnadevaraya's small brother was trying to aim the ball into the hole but failed. After 2-3 minutes the ball went inside the hole. He became happy and wanted to do it again. He tried and tried but could not reach it. He found a stool which was nearby. He got the stool and started to climb the stool once he reached, he could not again get the ball. Therefore he used his turban that he wore on his head.

SOLDIERS AND WAR

They are fearless,
They are strong,
They fight till their lives are gone,
To save their country,
They are here,
We count on them every time,
To stop the crime,
They might bleed or even die,
But their love for the country,
Will always stay high,
Now we honour them today,
As they, our heroes,
Saved the day.

HAPPINESS SONG

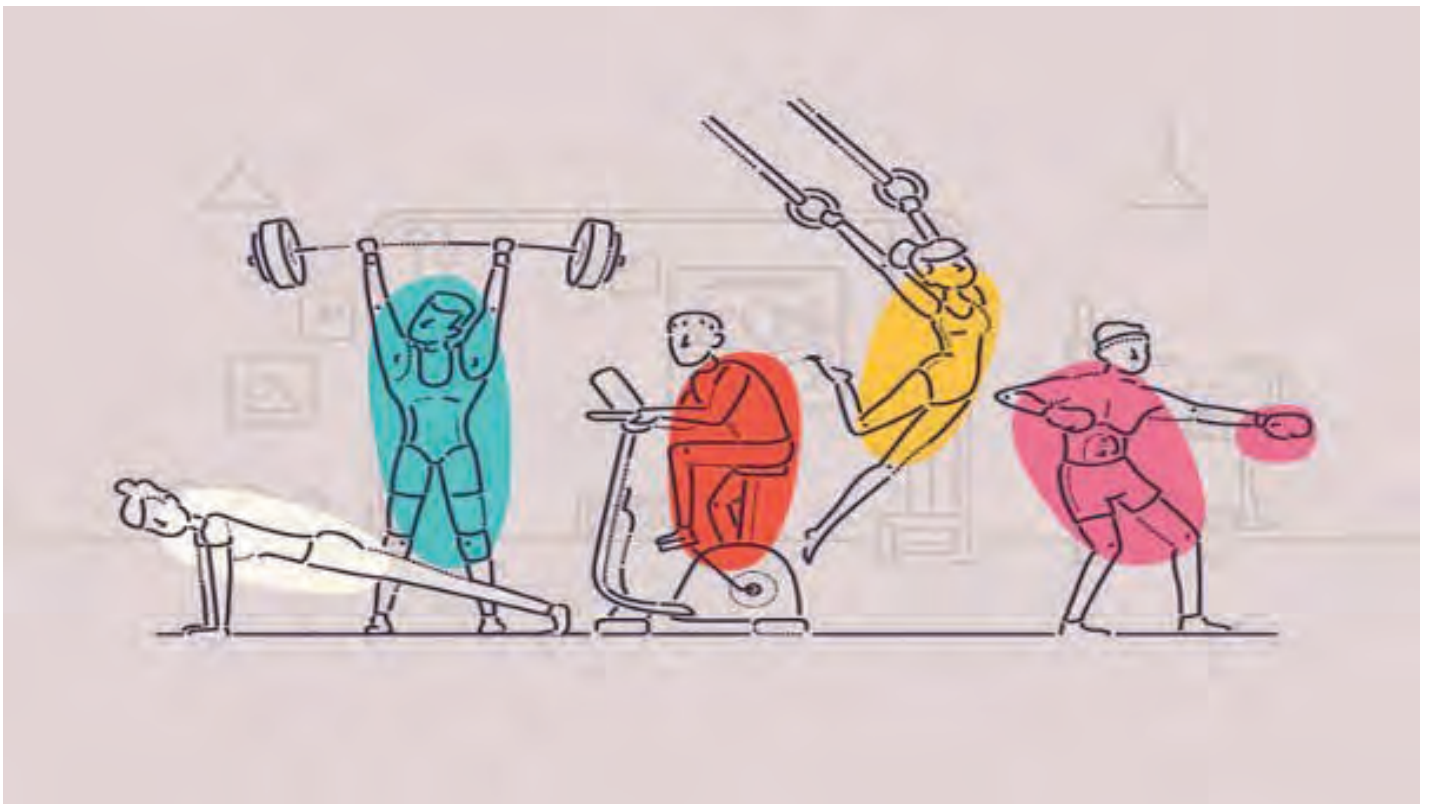

Happiness is something if you give it away,
you give it away, you give it away.
Happiness is something if you give it away,
then it comes right back to you.
Oh it 's just like a magic penny.
Hold on tight and you won 't get any.
Lend it, spend it, give it away,
then it comes right back to you.
A hug is something if you give it away,
you give it away, you give it away.
A hug is something if you give it away,
then it comes right back to you
Oh it 's just like a magic penny.
Hold on tight and you won 't get any.

CAN YOU REALLY BENEFIT FROM SPORTS ?

One of the most obvious benefits of sports is the physical health benefits that come from regular exercise. Engaging in sports helps to improve cardiovascular health, build strength and endurance, and increase flexibility and balance. In addition, sports can also help to improve mental health by reducing stress, improving mood, and providing an outlet for frustration and aggression.

But sports offer more than just physical and mental health benefits. They also provide opportunities for social interaction and community building. Team sports, in particular, promote teamwork, communication, and cooperation, all of which are important skills that can be applied in other areas of life.

MY JOURNEY WITH DofE SO FAR

“If you don't get lost, there's a chance you may never be found”

- ANONYMOUS

Don't know who wrote that, but the person behind the thought is indeed so correct in his/her comment. Sometimes life is just so monotonous, with the same activities, same work, same chores, etc., that you tend to go with the flow and remain in your 'Comfort Zone'. You do not explore, go beyond your boundaries and end up repeating the vicious cycle with the same complaints and dissatisfaction.

This is where The Duke of Edinburgh Award Program steps in. DoE is that element that brings in the breakthrough in a student's mundane and typical day-to-day life. With no extra qualification or extra dose of excellence required, it is a very simple program that facilitates holistic development and shows how simple skills such as reading and physical activities as cycling can get you accreditations which hold value internationally.

Personally, for me DoE was quite a unique experience, with not only so many new skills acquired, but also so many life lessons (such as the meaning and significance of discipline) learnt. It was not that I came back with additional lessons learnt, but instead just enriched my prior knowledge in its application, rather than the theoretical information. For instance, our learning of Topographic Maps in Geography classes found the true significance when we were to use them on actual ground.

A few old passions were ignited during this journey. I completely lost touch with chess for about a year, but slowly got back and stronger than ever. DoE also led me to learn basketball, which I now enjoy very much and probably would not leave for life. The Adventure Journeys, the most important wing of the program was a revelation of its own kind. Geographical knowledge in text book or viewing the rugged topography of UAE with disdain now found a new meaning. With several expeditions to the hilly region of Jebel Jais, not only do we learn to trek on rugged terrain, but also the ways of the wilderness, as well as survival in the harshest of conditions. For all of us who have a hundred reasons to be critical of our Geography lessons, get an opportunity to understand it far better than textbook learning and class lectures. These journeys are nonetheless a lot of fun, with so many challenges, so much navigation and of course, so much time spent in the company of our friends.

Conclusively, I feel DoE is sort of a must-do for each and every student, it is a module to be taken up by all, should you have the time, the resources, and the earnest desire to learn and do something beyond textbooks, classrooms and the walled enclosure of school and home. Trust me, you won't regret it (unless you get full body cramps right after a trek).

CHATGPT: FROM A STUDENT'S PERSPECTIVE

In the age of artificial intelligence (AI), students have unprecedented access to information through various digital platforms. Information, an essential amenity can be availed with so much ease that all we must do is generate a command. One such tool is ChatGPT, an advanced language model capable of generating human-like responses. While AI and auto-generated information offer numerous benefits, it is crucial to examine their impact on students' thinking ability. This article delves into the potential effects of AI, ChatGPT, and auto-generated information on students' critical thinking, creativity, and cognitive skills.

AI and ChatGPT have revolutionized the way students acquire information. With the click of a button, vast amounts of knowledge become readily available, enabling students to explore diverse perspectives and expand their understanding. Auto-generated information, including articles, research papers, and reports, can provide quick summaries or delve into complex subjects, saving students time and effort. However, the ease of access to auto-generated information may inadvertently hinder the development of critical thinking skills among students. Instant gratification can lead to a surface-level understanding, discouraging deeper analysis and reflection. Students may become accustomed to relying solely on auto-generated content, neglecting the valuable process of independent research, evaluation, and critical analysis.

While AI and ChatGPT excel in generating information, they may inadvertently stifle students' creativity and originality. These technologies often draw on pre-existing data to produce responses, making it challenging for students to develop unique perspectives. Over time, students may become overly reliant on AI-generated content, hindering their ability to think outside the box and express original thoughts. Furthermore, ChatGPT's responses can subconsciously reinforce biases present in its training data. Students exposed to such biased responses may unknowingly adopt or perpetuate those biases in their thinking. This can restrict the development of diverse and inclusive perspectives, limiting the overall growth of critical thinking skills.

We reckon that it is rather beneficial to be proactive than reactive, and we must put the lesson to use in this field too. Students must not resort to such auto generated mediums and instead must collect data and consolidate the information they already have in the form of well-knit essays and articles curated by them. This not only loosens their grip of the over-dependency on AI but also helps them master the much-needed skill of effective communication.

REDEFINING SUCCESS: LOOKING BEYOND EXTERNAL ACHIEVEMENTS

During my upbringing, I harbored a strong desire to achieve success, just like many others. My mother also had high aspirations for me, and in those days, success meant becoming an engineer or a doctor. However, with thousands of private and public colleges producing a plethora of engineers and doctors every year in India, I began to question whether all of them were truly successful. I realized that success is not solely defined by one's career or profession.

I delved into biographies of successful people and discovered that many were not formally educated. One of the most inspiring examples for me was Steve Jobs, the co-founder of Apple, who dropped out of college and yet built the most valuable company in the world. It became clear to me that success is not dependent on conventional paths or formal education. Success is often misconstrued as external achievements such as earning a high salary, getting promoted, or gaining recognition from others. While these may contribute to one's success, true fulfillment comes from within. It is about finding a deeper sense of purpose and meaning in one's life.

Success is not a one-time event but a continuous process of growth and development. It requires consistent effort and dedication over time. The journey towards success is filled with ups and downs, but it is crucial to stay committed to the process.

The definition of success is subjective and varies from person to person. It is essential to define one's vision of success and work towards achieving it in a way that aligns with their values and beliefs. For me, success means being able to help others in need, providing a better life for my family, and exhibiting strength during tough times.

In conclusion, success is not just about external achievements but is also about inner fulfillment and growth. It is a continuous journey that requires dedication and commitment. Each person's definition of success is unique, and it is important to align their actions with their values and beliefs to achieve true success. So, what is your success story?

Happy Birthday Hukumat Sir and Happy Birthday Ambassador School!

As the school's photographer started capturing the students in action in classrooms, in playgrounds, library and performing studio, what was common in every nook and corner was the positive vibes emanating from the learning corners, be it the field or lab or the art room or any place in the campus. The same was expressed by our young learners and our teachers, our admin, our support staff and parents, the school means more than just a school to them. Students shared their emotions on their alma mater to which many are associated for almost a decade. Their proud singing for ASD's birthday and the birthday of the school's founding father, Mr. Hukumat Kalwani only proved the longstanding relationship that all in Ambassador cherish. School is yet another family that all want to come back again and again. This is the ground which teaches them life skills, prepares them into strong, ethical and valued individuals for the society, dipped in emotions and sentiments to share and look back again and again. The birthday celebration of the school and Hukumat Sir culminated to a crescendo of live birthday song by students, presenting him a Birthday Card and flowers and the cake cutting before all teachers and staff; yet another day to go down in the annals of Ambassador, preserved for times immemorial.

Happy Birthday Sir and Happy Birthday Ambassador School! Our gratitude to you for giving us opportunities to create memories of a lifetime.

HAYAKUM 2.0

Ambassdor School, Dubai celebrated Hayakum 2.0 with great gusto and relish on 27th November 2023. The school whole heartedly welcomed parents from Grades 1 to 6 to witness how students showcase and share their interpretation of the rich culture and traditions in UAE and the the MENA region (Middle East and North Africa).

Students from grades 7 to 9 and 11 put up a plethora of activities such as the fun games stalls, Majlis photo booth, dance, henna, Let's Talk in Arabic, Calligraphy and a counter for delectable authentic Emirati food. The continuous commentary, managing the coupons and entry of visitors, keeping an eye on the school's parking lots, and a host of other commitments and responsibilities taken, all proved a point: the limitless potentials of our students. Our parent body needs a special mention with the deepest of gratitude for the spontaneous and enthusiastic participation and their encouraging feedback, which motivates the team to lookout for a fresh new plan for many more Hayakum in the years to come. Culture thus is sincerely passed on from generation to generation with an assurance of their healthy upkeep by none other than the youngsters, who are growing up slow and steady with the right global values and positive attitudes.

CHILDREN'S DAY CELEBRATION

We saw the beauty of teacher-student relationship in Children's Day celebrations at ASD. The teachers had put up a beautiful program to entertain their students, sure of their children's likes and what would bring them a lot of laughter, lot of fun, lot of pride to see their teachers in a different role.

As the teachers presented a skit before their students, imitating a classroom scene, it was heartening to see the children rolling with laughter, seeing their teachers acting like students. The lovely song, a heart to heart rendition from the teachers and the energetic dance on a medley of popular numbers, brought a sense of pride in the audience as they looked out for their respective Class Teachers and their favourite teachers in the group of performers. The finale saw the fashion walk by teachers which escalated the students' glee to the optimum height.

The program so beautifully established the wonderful relationship that students and teachers share, a trust on each other, the care for each other and keeping a tab on each other's likes and dislikes, to stretch out a mile more to bring smile, joy, happiness in the ASD family.

Much love and blessing to all our young learners and their wonderful teachers who took out time to entertain their students, celebrating Children's Day. May the bond grow stronger and learning continue to enlighten many minds and many souls.
